

Man Badly Burned, House Wrecked As Oil Tank Exploded

Second Humphrey Burned About Face as Tank in Cellar of Mrs. Aaron Katz's Residence on Broadway Blows Up This Morning.

Norwood Humphrey, an employee of the Ulster Fuel Oil Heat and Power Company of Slightsburg, was called to the residence of Mrs. Aaron Katz on Broadway, near East Chestnut street, this morning to make some adjustments to the oil heating plant. He was installing a new gauge when the oil tank blew up about 11:30 o'clock. Humphrey was badly burned about the face and the interior of the house was damaged by the force of the explosion. The fire department was called and found the cellar a mass of flames from the burning oil, but were able to bring the fire under control before the fire communicated to the floors above the cellar.

From what could be learned the oil tank, which was about half filled, was located in the front part of the cellar under the living room. The tank has a capacity of 250 gallons of fuel oil. Mr. Humphrey was making adjustments to the heating equipment when the explosion occurred.

The head of the tank blew out scattering the oil which blazed up quickly over the cellar floor and on the rafters that held up the first floor. Humphrey staggered out of the cellar into the yard. When the firemen arrived they found that he had been quite badly burned about the face. He was removed to his home in Lincoln Park in an automobile. The extent of his injuries was not ascertained.

So terrific was the force of the explosion that the floors of the living and dining room were displaced and furniture was upset and scattered about. Windows were blown out and pieces of window pane were hurled into Broadway, some of the pieces falling into the curb on the opposite side of the street.

The legs of the large dining room table were ripped off, and the piano in the living room was moved several feet away from the side of the room where it originally stood.

Small side tables in the rooms were upset and their contents spilled about the rooms. Potted plants were thrown to the floor and the containers smashed.

Sidewalls and ceilings were cracked and the floors in both the dining and living rooms will have to be relaid.

Both rooms looked as though a cyclone had passed through the house. At the time of the explosion Mrs. Aaron Katz was alone in the kitchen preparing lunch, while Mr. Humphrey was at work in the cellar. She was not injured, although badly frightened by the explosion which shook the house. The kitchen was not damaged.

Upstairs in the bedrooms the damage was not so great as on the lower floor. The radiators in the living and dining rooms were jarred out of position by the force of the explosion. In the dining room all of the dishes in the large china closet were broken, but peculiarly none of the glass sides of the china closet was cracked.

FIRST OF "SCOTTISBORO" NEGROES AGAIN TRIED.

Decatur, Ala., Nov. 27 (AP).—Without the military guard in evidence on previous occasions, the "Scottsboro case" started again today where it did almost three years ago with the trial of the first of seven negro defendants charged with attacking two white women.

Deputies replaced National Guardsmen as Herwood Patterson, twice convicted and sentenced to die, faced trial for the third time. The 12 man jury will be selected from a venire of 100 to hear the testimony of more than 70 witnesses.

Patterson was the first of the defendants tried at Scottsboro, seat of Jackson county, in April, 1931, two weeks after they were removed from a freight train and charged with attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, overall-clad cotton mill workers of Huntsville, Ala.

TWO HELD FOLLOWING FIGHT SATURDAY NIGHT

Paranesi also being charged with striking an officer. They were held for a further appearance before the justice at 9 o'clock this evening. Paranesi was committed to the county jail in default of bail.

Milk Price Takes Effect Today in State

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—A standard minimum retail price of 11 cents a quart for milk became effective today in all upstate cities and villages over 1,000 population "to protect the interests of the smaller dealers."

Boosting of the price one cent a quart under the order issued last Tuesday in territory not affected by previous edicts, making the minimum price state-wide except in the New York city area, fulfills one of the major objectives of the state milk control board.

The first increase was granted in July, mostly in larger cities, and extended to seven other communities on November 13.

"It is absolutely necessary that this be done," according to Kenneth P. Fee, director of the board. "Increased costs under the NRA have resulted in tremendous losses to dealers selling milk at 10 cents a quart."

President May Add To Army-Navy Size; Now At 'Danger Line'

Army's Highest Ranking Officer Says Expansion Point at Hand—Army Officers Optimistic—U. S. 17th in Armed Strength in World Rating.

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP).—President Roosevelt, whose budget bureau already has approved an increase in naval and marine forces, will be requested to ask Congress for funds to raise America's army strength from "below the danger line."

It is at that point now, says the army's highest ranking officer, General Douglas MacArthur, in an annual report to the secretary of war which will be transmitted to the President.

Many army officers were optimistic today about the prospect of getting some of the things recommended by MacArthur, chief of staff. They recalled that the budget bureau already had accepted a proposed appropriation request adding 2,500 enlisted men to the navy and 1,000 to the Marine corps, to man new ships.

MacArthur found that although the United States is 17th in world strength that alone is no cause for particular worry since America's needs are different. But in recommending an increase in regular army enlisted strength from 120,000 to 165,000; expenditure of around $200,000,000 on aircraft, modernization and motorization of artillery and similar projects, and restoration of other funds eliminated in recent years, MacArthur added:

"In the obvious state of unrest now prevailing throughout the world... an efficient and dependable military establishment... constitutes a rock of stability... It is my conviction that at this moment the army's strength in personnel and material and its readiness for employment are below the danger line."

Revolt Seen Near In German Church

Opposition Grows to Nazi Religious Aims—Many Pastors Announce Secession From Nazi Christian Movement, as Well as Professors of Theology.

Berlin, Nov. 27 (AP).—The long-threatened schism in the German Protestant Church was believed by many churchmen to be definitely nearer today.

While Nazi Christians in Thuringia were demanding a policy more radical than that previously enunciated by leaders, the rumble of opposition to the Nazi Christian program also gathered volume.

The Thuringians urged yesterday "a new interpretation" of the idea of the Rev. Joaquin Hossfelder, Nazi Christian leader. "In the same spirit of the third Reich."

At about the same time, many pastors in Bavaria and Wuertemberg announced their secession from the Nazi Christian movement. Then, three well-known professors of theology pulled away from the Nazi Christians.

Adding further fuel to the fire, two more non-Nazi pastors were suspended for allegedly assaulting the Rev. Mr. Hossfelder. Three others previously had been suspended, but they were reinstated.

In an interview at Koenigsberg, Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller declared his intention to continue a policy of unyielding adherence to Nazi principles.

"I will not undertake a single step against the German Christians," he announced. "Together with Hitler, we will build a new German church."

Catskill Glee Club Here on December 11

The Catskill Glee Club will give a concert in St. James M. E. Church on Monday evening, December 11, at 8 o'clock. The club is again directed by Roland E. Heermance, and is accompanied by Miss Mary Johnson, both having been with the club since its organization seven years ago.

One of the guest artists that evening will be Edna Nicholas Van Deusen, soprano, a talented singer who has a well trained voice, and sings with clarity and expression. Her selections are sure to please the audience.

Several new faces will be seen in the club this year and the voices added will make a well balanced group of singers. New songs are on the program together with some of the old favorites that glee club audiences like to hear. Some of the songs to be heard this year are: "Lullaby," Brahms; "Goin' Home," Dvorak; "Swing Along," Cook; "The Old Woman," Robertson; "The Old Road," Scott; and many others that men like to sing. The Catskill boys will bring along their usual amount of pep and humor which they always add to their programs wherever they appear.

Mr. Heermance, the club's director, will present a group of solos during the program.

Amulance Calls Here

Saturday the ambulance removed Mrs. Mary Seals from the Benedictine Hospital to the Dwyer brickyard, and John Stokes from the Kingston Hospital to 127 Pine Grove avenue.

Duncan Injured as Two Cars Crashed

Arthur Duncan of 147 West O'Reilly street, was injured Sunday afternoon when he was struck by a car that was in collision with another car on Broadway at Elmendorf street. He was removed to the Kingston Hospital where X-Rays are to be taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

According to the report made to the police by Ernest DuBois of Marbletown, driver of one of the cars, he was proceeding on Broadway and was turning left to enter Elmendorf street, when a car driven by Thomas Gallo of East Kingston, in passing his car was sideswiped. Duncan, who was walking across the street, was struck by the Gallo car.

None of the occupants of the two cars were injured, but both machines were damaged.

New Premier Faces Serious Situations

Camille Chautemps and Cabinet Face Depleted Treasury and "Work and Bread" Demonstrations—Rigid Economics Planned in Several Ways.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—A fast-emptying treasury, widespread protest meetings and miners' "work and bread" demonstrations greeted the new cabinet of Premier Camille Chautemps today.

The members took office early this morning after formal presentation to President Albert Lebrun.

No sooner had they officially entered office than Finance Minister Georges Bonnet told Bank of France officials that the government could meet its debts only until December 15.

To meet the situation, the cabinet began preparing a program contemplating saving 6,000,000,000 francs (about $400,000,000) through economies and tapping new resources to raise more funds.

At the same time, it was made known the cabinet planned to demand a decree of power to cut the pay of functionaries—a matter which has been a bone of bitter contention in the Chamber of Deputies.

It was upon a similar program that the two previous cabinets fell, the last one after only four weeks in power.

Meanwhile, economists were warning that inflation threatened, and new difficulties developed as a result of hundreds of farm meetings yesterday at which better prices were demanded.

These meetings were matched in northern France by so-called "work and bread" demonstrations in which 30,000 miners marched urging official action to improve employment conditions.

The new cabinet, differing little from the one it succeeded and apparently with little more hope for a lengthy survival, was formed in the early hours of today.

Local Federal Civil Works Board Awaits Official Approval

Kingston at Present Has No Recognized Board to Submit Projects for Civil Works Program—Approval Expected Soon.

Henry Forst, proposed chairman of the Federal Civil Works in Kingston, together with Nicholas Hogeboom and Alva S. Staples, await only official confirmation from Washington to their position before submitting a list of projects which will give work to a number of men in the city.

The proposed board is meeting regularly and has a list of projects which will likely find favor in the eyes of the officials in New York city, who must approve all proposals made by the local board. However, these proposals cannot be sent for confirmation until Washington officially approves the board selected by Mayor Eugene B. Carey after consultation with Mayor-elect Harry Walker.

The proposed board is meeting again this afternoon to have all plans in shape so that immediate action may be taken as soon as the board is officially appointed.

A number of inquiries have been made as to why no plans have been approved for Kingston and the explanation is that there is at present no board recognized to represent such projects, the first board having resigned, and the second not yet being approved by the federal government.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP).—The position of the treasury on November 24 was: Receipts, $8,596,424.77; expenditures, $28,628,438.83; balance, $1,168,972,374.78. Customs receipts for the month, $22,555,590.84. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) were, $1,118,908,159.72; expenditures, $1,529,737,533.61, including $644,744,619.65 for emergency relief; excess of expenditures, $716,829,374.89.

Office Building of Justice McKenzie Is Demolished by Auto

Crashes Into Brick Annex of Justice's Home in Port Jervis—Damage Estimated at Around $500.

Justice H. E. McKenzie of Port Jervis was awakened about midnight Saturday by a crash and a shock that he says resembled an earthquake. On investigation he found that a Plymouth roadster belonging to the Rev. Mr. Dunsmuir of West Park and driven by John Hart of Esopus had crashed into the front of the brick annex of his house, occupied as an office. The force of the blow was such that the whole front of the office was demolished, bricks being found later 36 feet distant. Windows in the house were broken, and some 25 feet of railing on the porch broken down. The judge estimates the damage at around $500 or more.

An investigation of the accident by Deputy Sheriff Tinnie showed that Hart, driving toward Esopus and accompanied by Theodore A. Letz, of Esopus, had met a commercial car, Inc. of Clifton, N. J. and driven by Joseph Brindel of Clifton, who was accompanied by Albert Salzer, Edwin Cramer and another man who did not give his name.

The accident happened about 200 feet north of the McKenzie residence and occurred, according to Brindel, when the Hart car swerved to the left and struck the commercial car. Although Hart's car lost its left front wheel by the impact, it continued on three wheels for 150 feet or more before smashing into the McKenzie office building.

None of the occupants of either car was seriously injured. Albert Salzer was treated for bruises about the leg and Edwin Cramer sustained lacerations about the face. Both cars were damaged so that they had to be towed to a garage.

John Richert Found Dead in Bed Sunday

Trouble—Was Employed by Board of Public Works.

John Richert, 70 years old, was found dead in bed Sunday morning about 11 o'clock when his wife went to call him. She notified her son, John Richert, Jr., and he in turn called the police. Officers Barmann and Brophy responded and Coroner W. N. Conner was called.

Mr. Richert for a number of years resided on the Plank road but has been residing at 106 North Front street for some time. He was employed by the Board of Public Works. According to the members of the family he retired about 11 o'clock Saturday evening, apparently in good health. When he failed to arise Sunday morning his wife went to call him and found him dead in bed. His son told the authorities that he heard his father about at midnight.

The remains were taken to the W. N. Conner Funeral Home on Fair street where Dr. H. P. Van Wagenen made an examination and gave the cause of death as valvular heart trouble.

Besides his wife he is survived by one son, John, of Kingston, and two brothers, Christopher and William, of Sawkill.

Funeral services will be held from the Conner Funeral Home, 296 Fair street, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Hog Slaughterers Must Pay Tax

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Heistering stated today that it has been brought to the attention of the Bureau of Internal Revenue that in many instances farmers and others are slaughtering hogs and selling the products to consumers without payment of the processing tax. This is a violation of the Agricultural Adjustment Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, which provide that any person who slaughters hogs for market must file appropriate returns and pay the processing tax thereon.

The tax applies even in the case of the producer who slaughters his own hogs and sells or otherwise disposes of all or any part of the products.

Heavy penalties are provided for violation of the law or evasion of the tax and any person who slaughters hogs and sells all or any part thereof should confer with the collector of internal revenue for his district who will assist him in preparing and filing the required returns.

OTIS SLIGHTLY HURT AS CAR HIT PARKED TRUCK

Harold Otis of Harwich street was injured about the face when his automobile collided with a parked truck owned by Elsie M. Knauth, which was drawn up to the curb in front of 322 Albany avenue, Saturday evening. Mr. Otis reported to the police that the truck had no lights and that as he approached he was blinded by the glare from headlights on approaching cars and did not see the truck at the curb.

Slayers of Brooke Hart Lynched Following Recovery of His Body

Lynching Occurred After Torn Body of Young Hart, Son of Wealthy San Jose Merchant, Had Been Taken From San Francisco Bay—Barrage of Tear Gas Fails To Stop Determined Mob—No Arrests Made.

San Jose, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP).—Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, confessed kidnaper-slayers of Brooke Hart, were lynched here last night by a mob of 100 men who smashed their way into the county jail after a 2-hour battle to seize the pair.

A whooping, cheering crowd estimated at 6,000 persons looked on. Thurmond, first to confess, was unconscious when dragged to St. James Park, 100 yards from the jail, partially stripped and hanged to a tree.

Holmes, a powerful man, fought for his life in vain. Twice he wrenched his hands free and lifted the noose from his head, but the third time it was put there to stay and, still kicking, he was yanked into the air.

In the glare of torches and flashlights the bodies dangled for half an hour or so—a macabre picture for the thousands who had assembled swiftly after the news of the lynching movement had spread through the city. Then the lifeless forms were cut down and there was no further attempt to interfere with the mob.

Thurmond's body had been slightly burned by flames from blazing newspapers held up by the mob as torches during the hanging.

The lynching, occurring only a few hours after the torn body of young Hart, son of a wealthy San Jose merchant, had been taken from San Francisco Bay, climaxed a spectacular battle between officers barricaded in the jail and the determined mob.

The muttering throng began gathering about the jail about 9 p. m. The jail, an antiquated brick building to the rear of the court house, had been prepared against the possibility of a lynch movement but was unable to withstand the improvised battering rams of the attackers. Automobiles, parked across the alleys about the jail building, did little to impede the advances of the besiegers.

Two shots, fired from the crowd as a signal, started the first attack. A barrage of rocks, gathered from across the alley where a new post office building is under construction, clattered against the jail walls. Officers within the jail let loose with three tear gas bombs. Blinded and weeping, the attackers fell back.

85 Officers Guard Jail. By this time some 3,000 persons had gathered to watch. The 35 officers in the jail building sent out a call for more tear gas. All lights in the building were extinguished.

The blinding tear gas from the first three bombs was still hanging like a thin veil about the building when the second attack began. Several of the attackers took from the post office building a piece of steel pipe 8 inches in diameter and about 20 feet long and used it as a battering ram, smashing in the jail door.

Officers turned loose another barrage of tear gas, momentarily stopping the assault. After waiting a few moments for the gas to lift, the mob stormed ahead once more, playing a fire hose on the building as it advanced. A second group seized another pipe and joined the attackers. The steel doors of the jail gave way and the mob poured in, encouraged by cheering thousands outside.

Sheriff William J. Emig, whose quick action had resulted in the arrest of Thurmond while the latter was making a ransom demand by telephone to the Hart home a week after the young victim had been put to death, was knocked senseless. Other officers were manhandled and brushed aside.

The deadly mob demanded Antone Serpa, recently convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of Leonard Ramona, a ranch foreman. Deputy sheriffs persuaded the group to let Serpa alone and the invaders pressed on.

In the cell which had imprisoned David A. Lanson, now under sentence to hang for the murder of his attractive wife, Aliene, at Stanford University, last May, the mob laid hands upon the whimpering Thurmond, dragging him into the street and raining blows upon him.

Holmes Put Up Fight. Holmes struggled as he was dragged from the cell that once had held Douglas Templeton, now serving a life sentence for the murder of his aunt. Likewise he was dragged out and pummeled.

Cheers, jeers and catcalls from thousands of watchers became the death march of Thurmond and Holmes. Down the alley between the court house and the partially constructed post office and across the street in the palm fringed park they were dragged. Officers, who had given up the fight, were closed out of the picture as the approving thousands lined the bordering streets.

The mob selected a limb of a tall tree, looped a rope about the unconscious Thurmond's neck and hoisted him aloft while the crowd cheered.

North Manor Ave. Sewer Assessments

At the last meeting of the common council an opinion was rendered by Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan that the special assessments for the sewer construction in North Manor avenue were too high and he recommended that a committee of aldermen meet with the mayor, corporation counsel, city engineer and residents of North Manor avenue to discuss plans for relief.

President Heiseiman at that time appointed Aldermen Haines, Sullivan and Schoonmaker as such a committee. Alderman Haines, the chairman, has called a meeting to be held in the mayor's office at the city hall on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Interested residents of North Manor avenue are expected to be in attendance at the meeting.

Assumes Duties
 Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—Francis E. Sayre, newly appointed assistant secretary of state, took the oath today and assumed his duties.

Canfield Gives Instructions to Mr. Forst on Duties

Workers Cooperative Association.
 276 Fair Street, Kingston, N. Y.
 Palmer Canfield,
 Chairman Executive Committee.
 November 25, 1933.
 Henry R. Forst, Kingston, N. Y.
 Dear Mr. Forst:

According to the statement in today's papers you have been recommended for the chairmanship of the local Civil Works Committee and I assume your appointment will be confirmed by the time this letter reaches you.

This association can see no reason why projects can not be submitted at once that will put upwards of 1,000 men and several hundred women to work immediately. The Foxhall avenue sewer is the only large sewer project needed at this time to complete our sewer system. Plans have been completed for this project. At least 500 men could be put to work on this job. The city will have to provide the materials but there should be no question about that requirement being met. At least 300 men can be put to work at once in relaying sidewalks on Broadway and other streets. This project will also require some stone-cutters, of which there are a number unemployed in the city, and will not require any materials. Another 200 can be placed at once in cutting wood in woodlots and the city would have the wood for the home relief families. These projects are in addition to those already proposed. Other projects can be suggested if needed.

At a general meeting of the association held last night at which nearly 700 men and women were present, I was directed to appoint a committee to cooperate with your bureau in behalf of the unemployed by myself as chairman. I have appointed Michael J. Powers, George W. Purdy, Barbara H. Baum and Peter Fisher. Our committee will be glad to cooperate in every way. We do not believe there is any excuse for any procrastination or delay. The unemployed want and are entitled to immediate action. Each day's delay means from $2,500 to $5,000 taken from the unemployed and the merchants of the city.

Yours very truly,
 PALMER CANFIELD.

Columbia County Wins Inter-County Dramatic Contest

"The Ugly Duckling", staged by the Pi Epsilon Pi Society of the Dutch Reformed Church of Greenport, Columbia county, won first in the inter-county dramatic contest held in the Lake Katrine Grange Hall Saturday afternoon. Dutchess county came in for second place with their play, "Balanced Diet", staged by the Washington Grange. It was a fine afternoon's entertainment for all the plays were well presented.

Ulster was represented by the Lake Katrine Grange, which gave a fine rendition of "Day By Day." The cast of the Lake Katrine play was as follows:

George Harris.....Daniel Morehouse
 Mrs. Harris.....Mrs. John Dederick
 Mary Harris.....Mildred Davis
 Jane Harris.....Elizabeth Davis
 Zeb Aiken.....Gwynne Thomas

South Kortright Grange of Delaware county entertained the audience highly with "Up in the Air," a comical but impossible plot, but well acted by the South Kortright players.

A splendid musical program interspersed between the plays added much to the afternoon's entertainment. Miss Susan Lasher, who was first prize winner in the State Grange solo contest at the State Fair this year, favored the audience with a number of well selected solos. She came from Delhi, Delaware county, with the Delaware county crowd. Also coming from Delhi was their Grange trio of male voices, who were much appreciated. Mrs. Blanche Ten Broeck and Mr. Halwick of Lake Katrine rendered some delightful violin and piano music. Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hooker, Jr., of Lake Katrine most generously filled in what might have been dull and tense moments with their entertaining and musical duets, which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Scout Troops Seek Roosevelt Award

Most of the Scout troops in the Ulster-Greene Council have been working the past year to meet the requirements necessary for winning the Franklin D. Roosevelt award. A representative of the President will make the award to the winning troops during Scout rally week in February. A sample of the award is now on display at the Scout office on Fair street. In addition to the award for individual troops there is also one for councils that meet the requirements.

The main requirements are: Conduct an approved program during the year with an attendance of at least 75 per cent. Show a net increase in boy members during the year, over 1932, at least 50 per cent of the new scouts to be 12 years old at the time of enrollment. Reregister at least 80 per cent of the new boys registered in 1932, before December 31, 1933.

LIVE BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

FAIR SENTENCED FOR EXTORTION OF $3,000

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Countess Grace De Benque today was sentenced to from two to four years in prison after being convicted with George A. Gormley of stealing $5,000 from Miss Louise Maret, proprietor of a fashionable girls' school here.

Justice Joseph W. Cox in the District of Columbia Supreme Court sentenced Gormley to from four to eight years.

They were charged with having Miss Maret "arrested" on a little frequented Maryland road by a man paid $250 to act as a "policeman." Miss Maret was told the matter could be kept quiet for $15,000. She told the court she had advanced $5,000, but later decided to prosecute.

GLASS PIPE LINES.

Many may remember the incredulity with which they received, about 10 years ago, the announcement that glass rods had been produced which would carry light as iron pipes carry gas or water, regardless of curves and corners. They were made of "fused quartz," which is artificial crystal. The idea is now rather familiar. Physicians have come to use this fused quartz in the form of lenses and rods of various shapes, which conduct light into the nose, throat, etc., to aid in surgical operations or to apply ultra-violet light directly to infected spots.

Alexander Silverman, chemistry professor at the University of Pittsburgh, suggests a vast extension of this principle. He thinks we may light our houses with quartz lines all running from one central lamp. Some day, he says, we may use quartz conductors in the same fashion to pipe daylight from one side of the globe to the other, thus using sunlight at night; or we may convey to the temperate and frigid zones the light and heat of the tropics. Fused quartz, which is now very expensive, might be cheapened enough for that purpose, he thinks, by making it of seashore sand.

For house lighting, would the glass transmission lines really be any better than wires? As for glass rods thousands of miles long, wouldn't they crack too easily? Then there is the expense. Fused quartz today is made slowly and painfully by building it up particle by particle to the desired shape and size under a blow torch. Some day we may learn to cast long sections. Even so, the professor seems highly imaginative.

SECOND-HAND CARS.

The new NRA automobile dealers code is regulating the used car business, with special attention to trade-in prices. There will be a top limit to what any dealer may allow for an old car when the owner is buying a new one. After acquiring the used car, the dealer may recalculate it and get whatever he can for it. The limitation is obviously sound. It will save dealers from the competitive pressure which leads to so much allowance for trade-ins that there isn't a fair profit on the new cars. What the old cars will bring, then, is nobody's business, unless the seller misrepresents them.

There may be some important results to car owners. Obviously the assumption of a standard value for every used car of a certain make, model and age can do no more than strike a rough average, and will often be unjust. Everyone knows that a car driven little, and well cared for, is worth more than one the same age that has been used hard and not kept up. If such a rule is enforced, owners will naturally use their cars more in a given time, to get full value out of them, before turning them in on new ones, and may also be less careful with them. That would wear all cars out faster. The new car market should profit by it. But, after all, observance of the rules is up to the individual dealer. To paraphrase a scriptural declaration, "Though he were brayed in a mortar yet will not the habits of the horse trading automobile dealer depart from him."

NEW LEADERSHIP.

One of the sad truths America has been learning is the fact that many of the nation's supposed financial giants not only used bad judgment in the great boom years and earlier, but that their ideals were wrong. In many cases their policies were determined wholly on personal, selfish grounds instead of sound business principles. The case was strongly, even bitterly, stated the other day by a widely known religious leader. "I make bold to say," he declared, "that if our country had it so much harder to get out of the depression than other countries of the world find it, the reason for that must be traced not to the impersonal depression but to the undermining of our financial structure by thousands of these manipulators—the insatiable and Wigginses and Mitcheells—who have brought that structure down in ruins about us. It is the moral bankruptcy of our financial leadership, quite as much as the depression. No system is racial-proof. No system can operate without character behind it."

A thoughtful citizen, reading that business cannot grow so ahead as it should because of uncertainty about the government's monetary plans and other policies, wonders whether it is not also partly a matter of that bankrupt leadership. Many of us, though no longer regarding the "rascals" as leaders, still hesitate, from habit, to go ahead on our own or to follow the government's lead.

Hyacinthe Dubreuil, a French engineer, has been studying various things in America connected with the automotive industry. One of them is the tracks made by oil dripping from cars on the road. He discovers the interesting fact that on American highways every pavement has two oil tracks, one on each side. In France, he says, there is only one oil track. Every French driver takes the middle of the road and holds it to the last possible second. Being a philosopher as well as an engineer, M. Dubreuil concludes that the ordinary estimate of Americans as an "undisciplined people," is wrong. If motoring is really training us to fair and orderly behavior, chalk up a big credit mark to that much criticized occupation.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY
 James W. Barton, M. D.

A MUSCULAR BODY

Just why some physicians go out of their way to criticize young men and women who take a pride in developing their muscular strength is something I can't understand.

Of course building up muscle may not be building up brains, and there are likely some cases where too much time is given to building up muscle tissue and not enough to building up mind and spirit.

But there is no question but that the individual who has taken the time and pains to build up a good muscular body, with good posture, has attained something more than muscle and a good carriage. William McCougall in "Hygiene" says: "A well-developed and active muscular system tends to maintain a certain tone of the nervous system that favors an alert and confident habit of mind. Perfect functioning of all the bodily organs not only favors in this way mental activity, in general, but tends to an objective habit of mind; whereas imperfection of organic function tends to produce an undue prominence in consciousness of bodily self, and, therefore, an introspective (looking in) and brooding habit of mind."

In other words the well built muscular individual goes about his physical or mental work knowing full well that he can do it and enjoy it, whereas the individual who neglects muscular exercise or the care of his body is conscious of his lack of muscular tone, his organs do not function any too well, he is always conscious of his body and its imperfections just through this lack of proper functioning. This consciousness of his imperfections by turning his thoughts inward on himself certainly interferes with his mental and physical ability.

Now some of us have Rolls Royce bodies and others only Ford bodies, but in either cases if given proper exercise they will do well the work demanded of them.

Don't belittle muscular exercise. The entire surface of your body is solid muscle, some places inches deep, and Nature equipped you with a large stomach, strong heart, deep lungs, large liver and other organs because it expected you to use these muscles.

Daily exercise in a gymnasium or at home is a great investment. Gladstone said "All time and money spent in training the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

by William Byron Howery

CHAPTER 12
 THE THREAT

A LITTLE after dark, when Curt and Paul were sitting on a chop, they were talking over their plans for that night. Old John Paxton came walking into the glow of their campfire.

"Have a seat, John," Curt invited, standing up and offering his own place on the block.

He wanted a talk with Paxton, for the guileless old fellow was a mine of information. He was familiar with everybody, at Russian Lake, knew every river and range between there and the Yukon. The Klondike kept all other whites out of the Lilluars, but kindly old John ran his fur path unmolested.

His tent was pitched close to the canoe pier, and his eight sleek huskies were chained along the landwash there, each staked separately, each with its cool burrow dug into the turf. Instead of letting his dogs starve through the summer as others did, he kept a gill net anchored near the islets and caught fish for his team every day.

"Don't get up for me," he bade Curt. "I just stepped over to say they're going to be a little polka at my camp in about twenty miles. Ralph and Sonya and Father Lesperance and others'll be there. An' I figured your boys might like to join in, bein' sorta strangers here."

Curt accepted eagerly. That campfire, where he would meet people and learn things, was an opportunity made to order. And he would get to see Sonya Nichols again, a last time, probably, since she was leaving the next day.

Old John went back to his camp. While Paul busied himself making a spruce-tip mattress for their sleeping pokes, Curt leaned against the cache sapling and looked out upon the dark lake, not thinking about his hunt for Igor Karakhan but about Sonya Nichols' flashing eyes and the imperious toss of her head as she read him the riot act.

"Our marooned friend over on the island stands to get a soaking to-night," Paul broke into his thoughts, as a distant mutter of thunder rolled out of the western mountains. "He deserves worse, that ape. You should have let me shoot him."

Curt straightened up. He had forgotten all about the man. "I suppose you're right, Paul. But still, he was so drunk he wasn't altogether responsible. I didn't think about this storm coming on. I ought to go and bring him back."

SLIPPING his hash and automatic into his pocket, he stepped down to the landwash, launched the canoe and headed across for the islands.

He found the right channel without difficulty and nosed down through it to the island of dead pines. At his ball the "breed came out to the beach. Curt explained, told him to get in, and shoved off.

On the way back he suggested, "What'd you say, friend?—let's bary what happened this evening."

The breed seemed to have been waiting for him to say something, for he blazed out: "W'at business did you got come here in? Dat you your woodman?"

"Well, no, but she wasn't yours either, friend," Curt pointed out. He added patiently: "Now let me show you something. Suppose my partner and I didn't come over there. The girl would have reported you to the Yellowknives. Some or late they'd have got you. This country isn't big enough to hold you or anybody else that they really go after. If you look at this night, we saved you from—well, the penalty for what you tried to—hangin'."

The ugly word made the man jerk in the dark. Curt could feel the man glaring at him with an animalish hatred. He kept an eye on the fellow and loosened the automatic in his pocket. From experience with that sort, he knew he had made a vicious enemy.

"Damn fools what come nose into no-detr-beeness," the Indian growled, "dey sometin mebbe git caught under a pile of rocks back in de woods somewere."

Curt's patience snapped. He stopped paddling, tapped on the gunwale.

"See here, you. If you try any size talk with my partner or me, you'd better make your first shot good! Huz your grudge if you want to, but if I catch you as much as looking cross-eyed at that girl again, you'll be the one to get caked under a pile of rocks, and I don't mean maybe."

They skirted on ashore. With a low sinister oath by way of goodbye the "breed stalked off into the dark."

CURT went up to the tent, where Paul was tuning his guitar. Taking a can of cigarettes and a box of chocolate squares as their contribution, they stepped out the path to old John's "git-together."

The company had already gathered. Curt pulled a log close to the packing box for himself and Paul, and sat down, trying to be as inconspicuous as possible so that he could watch and listen. Somebody in that company might be Igor Karakhan's contact man. A word, a glance, a stray little slip might give him a clue.

He glanced now and then at Sonya, who sat near him, with the freight shining in her clear eyes and the glow of it tangled in her hair. She had looked up and nodded when he and Paul came, but she did not speak, and he believed that she had cast him into the outer darkness because of his good word for the Leninists.

With no factual reason for thinking so, Curt told himself that Sonya Nichols had known stormy experiences in her life, experiences which had left their mark on her. They had given her maturity and strength of character, but they had robbed her of any lightness of heart.

The question of her nationality still troubled him, and he determined to settle it once and for all. Reaching for Paul's guitar, he plucked a chord or two, and then started a Volga folksong, the only Russian piece he knew. Heads began swaying, moccasins tapping. Watching Sonya Curt saw that the old melody had caught her too. He met her eye, smiled at her, nodded; and she began singing softly. As he listened to the strange words which came so naturally from her lips, Curt's last doubt went glimmering. Russian, she was!

Tomorrow, Curt gave an unexpected apology.

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL JOHNSON
 & ALFRED PARKER

PASTEUR stated that germs cause diseases. In 1882 Koch proved it! In order to see the minute microbe that causes tuberculosis, Koch had to invent new appliances on the microscope and new stains to color the elusive germ. To prove that the germ really caused the disease, he devised a small closed cage of animals, into which he pumped the deadly poisons. The task of opening this germ-soaked trap to examine the dead beasts required untold heroism.

Koch was a small near-sighted Prussian country-doctor. He wanted to be an explorer and travel. When, at 28, he received a microscope as a birthday gift, this self-made scientist left his uninteresting medical practice and set off on a series of amazing adventures in the world of microbes. Working slowly and with infinite patience, he identified the germs of anthrax, cholera and tuberculosis, and investigated malaria, bubonic plague and sleeping sickness.

Koch revolutionized the methods of bacteriology. His "Tuberculin," which he falsely believed would cure tuberculosis, is still used as a test on animals intended for food.

Kingston Students on Senior Committees

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—Two Kingston youths, students of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C., have been named to posts on the various Senior Week committees just announced by the president of the Senior Class, Daniel S. Sullivan of Baltimore, Md. They are Louis J. Goffredi, son of Michael Goffredi, 163 Clifton avenue, and Bartholomew J. Dutto, 42 Pine Grove avenue, son of Louis Dutto.

Mr. Goffredi has been designated chairman of the annual Senior Ball, the last social function of the graduating class, and Mr. Dutto is named to the program committee for the commencement exercises. Both men have been prominent in extra-curricular activities since their matriculation at The Catholic University.

Seniors now in the College of Arts and Sciences, both Mr. Goffredi and Mr. Dutto will receive their baccalaureate degrees in June, 1934. They were graduated from Kingston High School with the Class of 1930.

Mrs. Fred Dressel led the chorus singing, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Johnston at the piano. A recitation, "The Stranger on the Hill," and a poem, "Your Point of View," were given by Mrs. Carrie Harp. The speaker of the evening was Col. E. Burnett of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Elliott gave two readings, "In Flanders Land" and "Country-side Sayings." Bruce Bennett, who was expected to give a reading, was unable to attend. Another amusing reading was given. Studies of Wind Resistance to Bring Change.

Washington.—Uncle Sam, as a scientist, has forged into the front rank of those fighting for economic readjustment when exhaustive tests by the bureau of standards disclosed that the next development in automotive engineering probably would largely eliminate present models just as long-accepted railway, airplane and marine designs are being scrapped for vastly improved ones.

Recent tests conducted by Dr. H. L. Dryden, chief of the aerodynamic section of the United States bureau of standards, with small scale models in wind tunnels representing automobiles of ten years ago and of today, show that in the past decade little has been accomplished toward eliminating wind resistance and drag.

"Much has been said about streamlining automobiles to gain speed and reduce fuel consumption, but little appears to have been done," Dr. Dryden declares. "However, with a thoroughly stream-lined model developed by the aerodynamic section, in which the front end was rounded, fenders and lights fitted smoothly into the frame and the body tapered off gradually toward the rear, it was found that resistance and drag was cut more than 30 per cent."

With this forceful illustration of what the teardrop design practiced by blunt fronts and partially tapering ends will do to reduce resistance to motoring, it is believed that American automobile manufacturers will soon start building models which Uncle Sam has pointed out are of greater efficiency in cutting down drags set up by any object being propelled rapidly against air.

Tests indicate that realignment of seats and a complete change in riding conditions may follow. Due to their teardrop shape, it appears likely the ultra-modern automobile will prove wider inside, with seats better allocated for comfort.

Tiny Louisiana Church Houses One Worshiper

New Orleans.—There is a little church in Louisiana, called Madonna chapel, which accommodates only one person at a time.

The church, battered, unpainted and weather beaten, stands in a field between Point Plaquemine and Bayou Goulet, ten miles from the town of Plaquemine. It is still used for worship.

Legend says that, more than thirty years ago, an Italian living in that section had a very sick wife. He prayed for her recovery, promising a shrine if his prayers were answered. The wife got well and so he built the tiny church.

The church is of octagon shape, made of lumber. A wooden cross grows the people. It has one colored glass window.

Years ago inhabitants of the district placed costly gifts at the shrine in recognition of favors granted. History says that gold and diamonds, along with discarded crutches and braces, graced the altar.

Whether that be so or not, the fact remains today that some of the discarded braces and crutches still clutter the chapel. But the diamonds and other valuables are gone.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

M. J. ("Mike") Thompson, football's most famous referee, has to keep his nerves healthy. He says:

"Because nothing can be allowed to interfere with healthy nerves I smoke Camels. I have tried them all—given every popular brand a chance to show what it can offer. Camels don't upset my nerves even when I smoke constantly. And the longer I smoke them the more I come to appreciate their mildness and rich flavor."

Many smokers who have changed to Camels report that their nerves are no longer irritable... "jumpy." Switch to Camels yourself. You will find that Camels do not jangle your nerves—or tire your taste.

SIGN-POSTS

IMAGINE yourself on an unfamiliar highway at night in the country. You want to go to Allison. You come to a forked road. No signs! Which way? You turn left and come to a crossroad. No signs. You turn right. You come to a town. It proves to be Liberty. You go back to the fork and turn left. A miles or so farther on you come to another crossroad. A sign pointing right says "Allison three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles—spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements! Think of the number of stores you would have to visit, qualities and prices to check, reliabilities to consider.

Advertisements are sign-posts. They are information. They save you from wandering aimlessly from store to store. They keep you advised of the newest products; of the latest values. They save you time, and put greater buying power in your dollars. They assure you of quality and service in merchandise, for only honest goods honestly advertised can stand the spotlight of publicity.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS

Lights of New York

by L. L. SEVENSON

New York—Just a few years today, I will start off with Carl Lammie. He's supposed to be head of hearing. The qualification to read adversity there is a belief that his coat-stand is his greatest when he doesn't come to him. A case in point was a recent paper game in which he engaged with Sam Ryan, his secretary, Sam Jacobson, his general manager and a couple of other friends. Along came a hand on which Mr. Lammie lost with enthusiasm. The others stuck along but there was no Lammie discouragement whatsoever. Finally one of the players remarked in a casual tone, "Wonder what the old man's got, anyway?" "It will cost you just two bucks to find out," came the quick reply.

Then there is Oliver Herford, who with Daniel Frohman, is said to be the last addict of the old 4-inch stiff collar. Mr. Herford is also head of hearing. It is related of him that he is fond of playing a certain game, his opponent being some one for whom he does not care particularly. According to the report, he carries on a long conversation with that person and never hears a single word!

Having passed Owen Davis on Broadway up near Fifth street a few minutes ago, a yarn about him told me by Ray Henderson comes to mind. A new Davis drama (not "Janshof"), was about to be given a preliminary production by a New England stock company. A reporter asked Davis if the play was good. "No," replied the playwright ironically, "it's just a little thing I tossed off in a couple of days." And with considerable chagrin and annoyance, Davis read his own words printed verbatim the following Sunday in an important New York newspaper.

Then there was that builder who died a short time ago and was buried in a magnificent mausoleum of his own designing—a mausoleum in which is reflected the spirit of the skyscrapers which are his monuments within the city. A few weeks later, a merchant who specializes in cheaper dresses, showed drawings of a mausoleum to friends, saying that he believed in being prepared for the future. One of the friends remarked that there was a resemblance to the tomb of the builder. "Yes," replied the merchant, "but I've improved on it."

Just happened to think about Peter, Bill Sarver's peerless mouse. The other night, the man of the house was awakened by what sounded like a heavy tread overhead. The noise was all the more disquieting, as the bungalow had been unoccupied over the week-end. So, with considerable misgivings, an investigation was made. It was discovered that an intruding mouse had taken refuge in a heavy shoe and the thuds were caused by Peter slapping at it. The cat's fun was ended abruptly and again sleep came. But it was broken by more heavy thuds. The investigation disclosed the fact that another mouse had taken refuge in another shoe. Such a night!

Speaking of unhappy nights, there was the experience of the Fifth avenue resident who, awakened by a slight noise, saw in the dim light of his bedroom, a man making way with his clothing. Hopping out of bed, he leaped on the intruder's back—only to discover that it was merely his valet taking his suit down to be pressed. And now he's looking for a new manservant since the old one got so mused up he not only quit but demanded—and obtained—$500 damages.

Diocesan Priests Given Title to Famous Church
Collington, Md.—Historic White Marsh Catholic church, the seat of government of the church in early days of the colonies, has been turned over to diocesan priests after 200 years under Jesuit authority. The constitution of the American Catholic church was adopted in 1783 on the site of the present edifice, and John Carroll was elected the first Catholic bishop in America there in 1789. The property was bequeathed to the Jesuits in 1789 by James Carroll.

Rabbit Bites Building
Midland, Texas.—A jack rabbit almost made news when he bit a building owned by a Winkler county official. The dog chased the rabbit into a fence corner. Turning on his pursuer, the rabbit sank his teeth in the dog's flesh. The dog fled. So did the rabbit.

Artist Uses Beer to Mix His Paint
New Orleans.—"Beer colors," the only two known to exist, are now offered to New Orleans' alcoholic art lovers. Two paintings, thirty-five years old, hang in the art department of Tulane university. The artist, Elizabeth Woodard, used medicinal beer instead of water to mix the paints, and the colors are better preserved than the average water color of that age.

Woodward used beer because he could not obtain suitable water in the Mexican mountains where the sketches were made.

MOVES HER BROOM, SAVES A MILE AND A HALF

Taking her daily exercise by walking across the kitchen floor did not appeal to Mrs. Frances Lowe of the Napanoch Home Bureau, so she moved her broom. Through this one small change she says she saves 30 feet of kitchen walking at least five times a week. Six feet is saved through another small change, making 144 feet a week saved. And she figured out that this is 7,592 feet in a year, or more than a mile and a half.

"I became a little more kitchen conscious," she wrote the Ulster County Home Bureau office, "after we had our lesson on 'kitchens' with Miss Ella Cookman, specialist in household management, in charge. I began to think. I discovered that my cleaning equipment was pretty well scattered. I spent not more than ten cents for some closed and open screw hooks. I put a closed screw hook in the end of the handle of the dry dust mop, wall brush, stair brush, dry duster, broom and carpet beater. I put six open screw hooks in the wood closet on the cellar way wall and hung my cleaning equipment together. And I have saved over a mile and a half of kitchen walking a year."

But this is not the only change Mrs. Lowe has made. Her kitchen cutlery drawer had no partitions. Every time she went to get a particular piece of cutlery a search had to be made to find the piece wanted. Time and nervous energy were thus wasted many times a day. She planned to divide the large space into three short spaces and one long space, the long space to be used for bread knife, pancake turner and other long pieces of equipment. One short space she planned to be used for the cutlery most used, as paring knives, measuring spoons, etc. The other two for articles not used so often.

"A kind neighbor put in the partitions for me," she writes, "and I consider the partitioned table drawer saves me at least 10 minutes a day. That equals 3,550 minutes a year, or over 60 hours a year. This is a small item of time but still counts for much, plus the nerve strain saved by not having to search for a particular piece of cutlery wanted."

Aside from the number of pages of the world's best literature that Mrs.

Lowe may be able to read in the 60 hours thus saved, or the delightful evenings she might spend with neighbors and friends, how can ever be measured the happiness in the home life obtained where intelligent planning has removed the trivial difficulties that annoy? And the 60 hours thus saved might in some cases be turned into producing articles for sale whereby the family income could be increased. The Home Bureau is planning to help many more women in Ulster county reduce the time and energy spent in doing home tasks another year.

Jealousy a Disease
Medical science has until recently regarded jealousy as a defect of character that is incurable. Psychologists have come to the conclusion, however, that jealousy is a disease, with the same general characteristics as other diseases. Jealousy is a mixture of fear, envy and weakness. It is just as uncontrollable as love, which comes and goes without any conscious effort of will. The only difference between love and jealousy is that whereas love is incurable, jealousy can now be treated by means of psycho-therapy. The basic cause of jealousy is discovered by means of exhaustive psycho-analysis and after this a complete cure can be effected in most cases. The jealous person is given hormones and is otherwise treated in the same way as a chronic dipsomaniac.

Knights of the Golden Horseshoe
The Knights of the Golden Horseshoe were a group of Virginia gentlemen given a courtesy title by a governor of Virginia, Alexander Spotswood, who made a trip on horseback in 1716 from the capital, at Williamsburg, into the back country of the colony, to survey and make plans for its development. Their route led to the north and west through what is now known as Spotsylvania county to the summit of the Blue Ridge mountains. By the reports they brought back, settlement of the valley of Virginia was greatly promoted. Many deeds of adventure and daring were engaged in and there was much danger of hostile Indians; consequently the title.

Lost Castle Found
Believed to be part of the lost castle of the De Mandevilles, an early Norman structure has been discovered near South Mimms, England. It lies beneath extensive earthworks. At the Doomsday survey the site formed part of the vast estate of Geoffrey de Mandeville. In the Twelfth century a charter was given to Sir Geoffrey's son to build a castle, of which all trace had been lost for nearly 700 years. The discovery revives an old tradition that South Mimms is haunted by the ghost of Sir Geoffrey de Mandeville.

Ravens, Crows, All the Same
Poe's raven and America's crow, like Rosie O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady, are sisters under the skin. While the raven tapped doors, the crow taps eggs of nesting birds—the baneful influence of both the legendary emblem of death and the pillager of cornfields amounts to the same thing.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Joe E. Brown, screen comedian, as a sideline acts as a volunteer alumnus of the University of California at Los Angeles and gets perhaps a greater thrill on the campus than he does on the stage.

During the football season he makes a trip now and then with his adopted team, being careful to explain, "I pay my own expenses."

Mike Frankovich, U. C. L. A. quarterback, is a protégé of the comedian and lives at his house. Brown soon will have a football-playing son at U. C. L. A. For a younger Brown is playing a good game as a senior for Beverly Hills high school.

A Fan's Philosophy

Joe E. went to a football luncheon to tell spectators that they take the game too seriously, urging them to remember that the result may seem a matter of life and death today but it is not so important tomorrow. He remained to tell the football fans something about motion pictures.

"You may not know," he suggested, "that an important part of picture making is in the cutting. When a picture is made about 13,000 feet of film is shot, but only about 6,000 feet appears in the picture. Any actor will tell you that sometimes the best part of the picture is cut out."

"Let me tell you an early experience I had with the cutters. When I came out here to make my first picture, I thought I did very well. Anyway the people working on it said I was 'pretty good and, while I didn't know much about it, I thought I was at least fair in the 'rushes'."

But Where Was Brown?

"When the picture was first shown I was at the theater when the doors opened. Imagine my chagrin when the show started. I wasn't in the picture. Everything I had done had been cut out."

The actor told his hearers at the same luncheon married men should not always agree with their wives.

"We were making a picture once in which a beautiful actress appeared wearing a gorgeous bathing suit. A man and his wife were visiting the set. I know it was his wife for he paid absolutely no attention to her."

"When this actress made her entrance in the bathing suit, the wife took one look and said, 'That beats me.' Instantly the husband replied, 'It certainly does,' and then he was in for a lot of abuse. So I say it is not always safe to agree with your wife."

Bones of Visigoths

Found in Cordova

Madrid.—Workmen have discovered Visigothic burial grounds on Mount Horquera, in Cordova. Eighteen sepulchres containing the remains of ordinary persons surrounded a funeral urn containing the perfectly preserved skeleton of a Visigoth warrior.

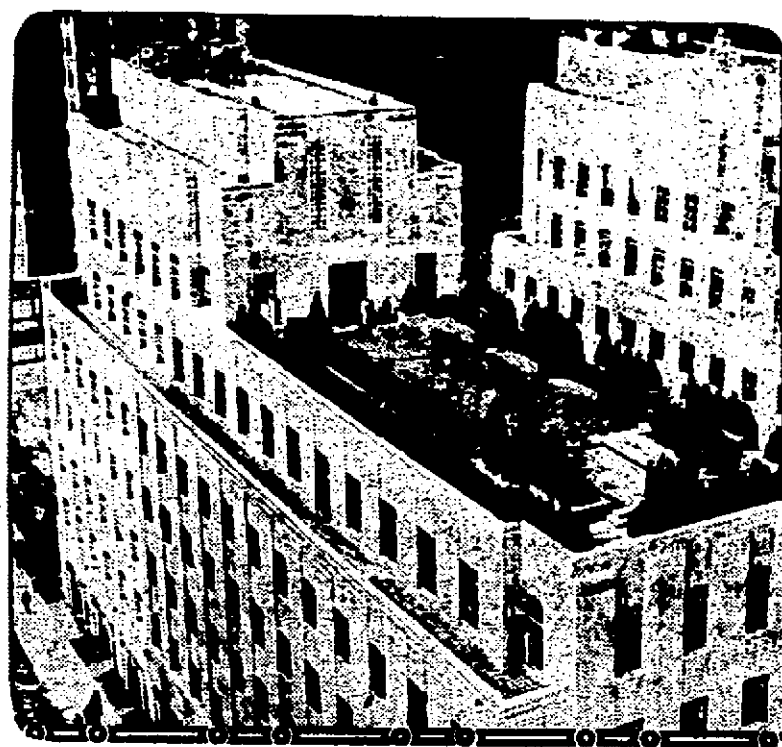

Among the articles found near the warrior's skeleton is a gold coin that bears the bust of Suintila, king of the Visigoths in Spain from 622 to 631. Beneath the bust is the inscription "Suintila Rex," the "x" being in the form of a cross. On the other side is the word "Tivs," which appears on many old coins, and another word that looks like "Babi," presumably the town where the gold pieces were coined.

Near the bones of the warrior was a metal jar containing an ointment, which has been sent to a chemical laboratory for analysis. There were also the point of a spear, the usual ceramic objects and metal buckles and crosses.

Archaeologists attach great importance to this find, because remains of the Visigothic epoch in this country are scarce.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "The Late Christopher Bean." A dramatic and sentimental stage hit, this enjoyable story of a painter whose art becomes famous after his death, constitutes one of the finest screen presentations in show time. Marie Dressler rises to new honors as the star of the play, and she also contributes one of the most lovable screen characterizations in history as the servant in a New England family, who loved and appreciated Christopher Bean, a drunken painter who boarded at the house. Everyone else considers him a worthless, lazy fool, but after his death, it is discovered that his painting is world famous. There is naturally a wild scramble for the paintings he created while at the house, and the outcome of it all makes dramatic entertainment. Supporting Miss Dressler are such capable players as Lionel Barrymore, Jean Hersholt, H. B. Warner, Helen Mack and Russell Hardie. This talkie also features in Wide Range sound at the Kingston theatre, a new invention that clarifies speech and makes whispering natural and understandable in every part of the theatre.

Orpheum: "Men Are Such Fools." A bit of a mystery drama that stirs up the imagination with shouts and "Skyway." Leo Carillo, Una in the night, strange goings on and Merkel Vivienne Osborne and Joseph Carthorn are the main figures and Ginger Rogers are in the cast. In this modern tale of the bright Broadway: Same.

lights. "Skyway" is a story of aviation, with Kathryn Crawford and Ray Walker.

Broadway: "The Emperor Jones." Eugene O'Neill's strange play of the negro porter who becomes a king, comes to the screen after a brilliant run on the legitimate stage and the opera, with Paul Robeson, the great negro singer in the starring role. An almost negro cast lends ample support, and this show develops into unusual screen drama. Romance and comedy find little place in this character study of a big buck negro with a superiority complex who leaves his job as a Pullman porter and finally rises to the throne in a negro country. Crazy, brutal, ignorant, he meets his death in the jungle of the country he sought to rule, and he dies a victim of superstition, as the two drums of the natives beat in the background. Wide Range Sound is also offered at the Broadway, star of the serial "Tarzan the Fearless" is also an added feature of the bill.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "Our Betters" and "A Shrike in the Night." A Somerset Maugham's English story of high society comes to the screen in the first, with Constance Bennett in the starring role, supported by Gilbert Roland. It is a satirical piece, and capably done, in the best drawing that clarifies speech and makes whispering natural and understandable in every part of the theatre. "A Shrike in the Night" as might be judged by the title, is a bit of a mystery drama that stirs up the imagination with shouts and "Skyway." Leo Carillo, Una in the night, strange goings on and Merkel Vivienne Osborne and Joseph Carthorn are the main figures and Ginger Rogers are in the cast. In this modern tale of the bright Broadway: Same.

A black and white illustration of a man in a suit sitting on a large newspaper, talking to a woman. A large shadow of the man is cast behind him. A rotary phone is on the left. The text "CONSULT YOUR WIFE for Sound Advice..." is in the top right.

MR. MAN, you may know more about the intricacies of the stock exchange, more of high finance, more of the whys and wherefores of politics, more of this and that—

BUT, when it comes to shopping, your wife has probably got you beat six ways to the jack-pot.

Now don't let your male egoism get the better of you and just say, "The bl—k she has."—think about it. After all, women have made it their business to be good, economical shoppers. They devoted thought and effort to the business "you haven't had time for."

Go to your wife and ask her how she handles this shopping proposition. She'll tell you, "Well, the first thing, and it's the most important, too, is to read the ads in the Daily Freeman."

And then she'll be glad to demonstrate for your benefit exactly how reading the ads led to economies and advantages in the purchase of everything from that club steak you liked so well last night to the new dress you've just been admiring.

Then, too, she'll probably welcome the opportunity of proving to you that she can save you money and assure you of better quality by buying your shirts and socks and such for you after checking the ads. Why not let her try it? She is a real expert at this shopping business. Above all, don't forget to follow her advice when you're shopping for yourself and check the ads in this paper before you start out to do your buying.

To Destroy Submarines From Air

THE British royal air force has developed a flying boat that is expected to destroy submarines. It will carry the quick fire gun here illustrated. The gun fires 1½ pound projectiles at the rate of 100 rounds a minute with an effective range of 1,500 yards. It is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit of the plane. How the heavy recoil of the gun is absorbed is the secret of the air force.

Reader Editor McGuffey

Born in Pennsylvania

The original editor of the readers, Dr. William Holmes McGuffey, was born September 25, 1807, in Washington county, Pennsylvania. The family originally came from Scotland. During the first 15 years of Doctor McGuffey's life, his father was the proprietor of the Glasgow City Star, and he had only the opportunities for education afforded by the country winter schools kept up by voluntary subscriptions. Later he was able to attend college in Pennsylvania and was graduated from that institution. He then taught a private school at Paris, Ky., and in 1829 he became a member of the faculty of Miami University at Oxford, Ohio. He was licensed as a preacher in the Presbyterian church, officiating only in the college chapel. In his later years he was president of Cincinnati college and of Ohio University at Athens. In 1841 he was appointed professor of natural and moral philosophy in the University of Virginia. It was while he was connected with Miami University that he began the compilation of his readers.

Alexander Hamilton McGuffey, associate editor of the readers, was sixteen years younger than his brother, William. He studied under his brother at Miami and was graduated from that institution at the age of sixteen. He held the position of professor of belles lettres at Woodward college, later studied law and was admitted to the bar. It was Alexander McGuffey who prepared the manuscripts for the fifth and sixth readers and also for "McGuffey's Rhetorical Guide."

Raleigh's Last Pipe

A pipe, said to have been presented by Sir Walter Raleigh to his executioner shortly before he laid his head on the block, has attracted much attention while on display in London. It has two stems and is decorated with carvings featuring Indian types.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

The Modist Has a Way With Fur

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

A version of the tricorn in black broadtail with two clips of brilliant at the sides is from Blanche et Simone. The sailor's bow next is in black seal-skin with matching grosgrain, from the same house.

Bonnets and Ribbons

These baby bonnets which have created a new hat silhouette offer much inspiration for the use of ribbons. Any of these hats, particularly the models definitely in period type, are developed in shirred sections for the entire bonnet or for the crown, and all sorts of ribbons lend themselves effectively for this use. Velvets, moires, grosgrain and the elastic ribbons enter well into this scheme and metals could be skillfully developed into an evening or dinner bonnet.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Among the smartest separate coats at football games were those with beaver trimming in lavish arrangements on sleeves, bodices and collars. Dark brown, smooth-finished woollens, beige tweeds or apple green fabrics of the broadcloth type were effective in combination with beaver.

Glimmering white with touches of green was the scheme developed in gowns worn by the bride party at a recent society wedding. The bride wore a white satin princess line gown from Molyneux. Soft drapery made fullness in the upper sleeves and again in the graceful neckline, caught in a butterfly bow by a diamond brooch.

For That Thanksgiving Reunion

New York—Not too much dressed up, yet looking one's best, that is everybody's wish with family reunions on the program. Here's a dress that is just the thing for that home dinner and can be worn either open or shut. Not because one is more appropriate than the other for day or night, but just for variety's sake. It's a simple model, but the gold-decked material requires no other aid to elegance.

Note the absence of armholes and then look around and see whether you do not notice that sort of thing being worn by the very smart women. Cutting the sleeve in one with the bodice insures a smooth shoulder line, besides which the underarm happiness is flattering to many types of women, stout ones, especially. For everyone knows that the looser one's clothes are, the better one looks when they are in the unfortunate stout class.

One of the most attractive accessories recently noted in the shops, and one that might be added to one's list of gift possibilities, is the separate gold cord girdle which is simply knotted at back or side. It adds a medieval note to princess dresses or to others. It is gold and not silver that has the highest style value this season, although if silver goes better with the color scheme you have in mind, by all means make it silver.

We have mentioned the fact before that daytime dresses are judiciously sprinkled with gold or in some way trimmed with it. Even flat boyish collars are cut from cloth of gold and are added to sturdy-looking wool dresses or the plain or mossy crepes. Women who have heavy gold jewelry find it is effective when worn with these frocks; in fact, quantities of costume "gold" jewelry are being bought just now for holiday gifts and for personal use. Don't forget the little gold hatpins to wear singly or in pairs to steady the absurdities that for want of better name we call hats.

THE MOTIF'S GOLD

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

An afternoon dress developed in a novelty crepe, with tiny gold motifs making a formal and pleasant decoration. The bodice may be worn fastened, swinging over to one side, or open in reverse fashion, as indicated in the small sketch. The gold buttons repeat the gold accents.

Slayers Of Brooke Hart Lynched

its approval. The clothing was torn from the lower part of the body and he hung there half clad.

The business of choosing a limb for Holmes required about ten minutes. A tree some 200 yards from where Thurmond was hanging was finally selected. He was stripped of all clothing and jerked upward.

Street lights and gaslights shedding intermittent gleams through the leaves, gave the scene a peculiar ghastliness. The crowd, augmented by thousands who had emerged from the houses just in time to witness the gruesome climax, quieted.

Photographers whose equipment had been seized in the earlier stages of the spectacle were not molested. The body of Thurmond was cut down finally and the crowd warned into the park to break souvenir twigs from the hanging limb. The assembled thousands were beginning to drift away when the body of Holmes was taken down.

Hours after the lynching the tear gas still hung about the jail like a sinister veil. The floors of the building were filled with wreckage. Two steel barred doors that had been smashed were barely hanging on their hinges and the heavy pipes that had served as battering rams lay in a corridor.

No Arrests Made.

Not an arrest was made. The only shots that were fired, with the exception of the charges from tear gas guns and bombs, were the two that started the attack on the jail. Sheriff King, after recovering consciousness, stood by, helpless, until the crowd wrecked its vengeance. Then he went to a hospital for treatment. Howard Ballington, a deputy who was struck from behind while pleading with the mob, and State Highway Patrolman Nick Gladner also received emergency treatment. Several persons were struck by flying missiles or burned by tear gas barrels.

Earlier in the evening in Sacramento, when Governor James Rolph, Jr., was asked if he would call out National Guardsmen to reinforce the officers, the chief executive said: "What, call out the troops to protect those two guys? That's the sheriff's job."

Informal later that Thurmond and Holmes had been lynched, Rolph said: "This is the best lesson that California has ever given the country. We showed the country that the state is not going to tolerate kidnapping."

The lynching was the first in California in 13 years. The last time a mob took the law into its own hands was December 10, 1920, when George Boyd, Terence Pitta and Charles Valente, San Francisco gangsters accused of killing three police officers, were hanged from a tree after being dragged from the Sonoma county jail at Santa Rosa.

Santa Claus Has an Aviator's License

And will fly from the North Pole to Kingston Air Port driving his own plane. To arrive 11:30 a. m. Thursday.

Here's good news for every good boy and girl who is anxiously awaiting the arrival of jolly old Santa Claus. He has just sent word to the Rose and Gorman Toy Department to be ready to receive him and take care of the toys he is bringing.

Many of the Kingston stores are cooperating in the plan to give Old Santa a right royal reception. After his arrival a band will provide music and all the friends of Santa will escort him in a parade through the streets of Kingston. Santa has timed his arrival so that the boys and girls who attend Sunday school exercise on Thanksgiving morning will have plenty of time to get to the airport in time to welcome the jolly old fellow.

Princeton, Army Unofficial Choices Against Stanford

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (AP)—To-day's football battle fields across the continent, Stanford turned today for the opponent it will face New Year's Day in Pasadena in the Rose Bowl classic that annually comes closest to determining the country's mythical football champion.

Preliminary steps in the negotiations to select a representative team from the eastern half of the nation found the undefeated and untied eleven of Princeton and Army as those unofficially favored in a list that also includes Michigan and Duke.

Will Consider All
Alfred R. Masters, Stanford graduate manager who will make the announcement naming the team to meet the west's choice, had nothing more to say than that "all available candidates will be considered."

Claude E. "Tiny" Thornhill, who coached Stanford in his first season to a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference championship with Oregon and honored role of western tournament of Rose's representative, drew out the information "we'll play any team picked for us."

Stanford was named to represent the west after defeating California Saturday, 7 to 3.

Brilliant Records
From sources considered authoritative it was learned Princeton and Army are the first choice. Each team has a brilliant record to date but each has one game to play. Princeton has won eight games and scored 190 points to six for the opposition but must defeat Yale December 2, to maintain its record completely intact. Army has scored 215 points against 13 in winning nine contests and has Notre Dame yet to meet, on December 2.

In comparative performances the two eastern leaders are expected to complete their schedules unbeaten. Unexpected defeat would cause complications and the announcement of the team named to meet Stanford may be held up until after the first week-end of play next month.

Meanwhile, two other unbeaten eleven, present strong claims for consideration. Duke University, Southern Conference Champion, has scored nine victories and has neither a defeat nor tie against it. It has piled up 181 points against 46 but still has one game to play, with Georgia Tech, December 2.
Michigan won the big ten title and its record lists seven victories, no defeats and one tie, with 121 points scored against opponents' 18.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Basketball contests that have been announced by managers of local teams for this week are as follows:

Tonight
Hebrew-Americans vs. Newburgh Hawks at Downtown Jewish Community Center.
Tuesday
Z. N. P. Sporting Club vs. West Point Helicats and Z. N. P. Girls vs. Comforter Club at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue. First game at 7:30. Dancing after the contests.
Wednesday
Stone Ridge vs. Colonial Alley Five and Stone Ridge Juniors vs. Falcons of Kingston at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls. First game at 7:30. Dancing after the main attraction.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GIBB

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Take 'em or leave 'em, here are some of the early All-America returns:

"Joe Shladsky (Pittsburgh end), who received considerable acclaim for his all-around work last year, especially on defense, is every bit as good if not better this year."

"Charles 'Burr' Harvey (Holy Cross tackle) has been outstanding in every game. Stopped Harvard's goal line charge single-handed and place-kicked the goal that beat the Crimson. Was line star on the day that Detroit halloped Holy Cross."

"Francis 'Pug' Lund (Minnesota fullback) seems destined to be an all-around choice for all Big Ten back-field and a probable All-American."

"Undoubtedly the greatest back in the Big Ten this year is Duane Purvis of Purdue. He is not only an elusive, hard-running back but he can punt a mile and pass 60 yards."

"Chuck Bernard of Michigan is unquestionably the outstanding center in the country. He weighs 216 pounds and is the backbone of the Michigan defense."

Until North Dakota State College bowled over Moorhead Teachers to the tune of 26 to 9, the Fargo outfit was well on the way toward hanging up one of the most unusual scoring records of any college team in the country.

As Jack Stewart points out from his long-range post of observation in Litchfield Park, Arizona, the Dakotas played four ties in their first six games, an extraordinary record. In addition to which the team and its opponents (with only one exception) displayed an uncanny knack of making it seven points for the day or nothing.

Here were five of the first six results:
North Dakota State 6, Concordia 9; N. D. S. T. Thomas 7; N. D. S. T. Morningstar 0; N. D. S. O. Superior (Wis.) 0; N. D. S. T. U. of N. Dakota 7.

The coach at North Dakota State, writes Stewart, "is Charles (Casey) Finnegan, a star at Ripon College in Wisconsin from 1911 to 1913. He was decorated for bravery at Chateau Thierry in the war."

As for Fullback
For the past two seasons, "Iron Mike" Mikulak, 200-pound fullback of the University of Oregon, has been about as well regarded as any back in the Pacific Coast conference. Chiefly noted for his defensive ability, he has been the team's backbone in the line this year with all the earnestness and drive of a locomotive plowing through a snow-drift.

Mikulak's appetite seems to be justly famous. The story is told of one of Oregon's trips, when Pat Spears, head coach and when the boys were told to eat all they wanted, the way back from an especially hard game. Everybody was having a fine time until the team manager spotted Mikulak's check:

"What's this? Eight dollars!" he exclaimed. "Aren't you about through?"

"Just about," Mike replied, "but I haven't had my dessert yet."

Sell-Out Indicated For Wrestling Show Sponsored By Legion

Indications are that the old armory will be a sell-out for the benefit wrestling show of the American Legion, Tuesday night, featuring Jumping Joe Savoldi and several other prominent mat stars billed to appear here in the first grappling program ever sponsored in Kingston.

Savoldi is matched with Emil Dusek, one of several wrestling brothers, who is rated as one of the most formidable foes that could be picked for the burly Italian of grappling and football fame. This duel is down as a finish affair and will be supported by the following 30 minute struggles:

Man Mountain Dean of Georgia vs. Stanley Sitkowski, Polish American football star.

Eli Fisher vs. Andy Metzner.
Joe Bonomo vs. Will Rauta.
Tony Felice vs. Nick Condos.

Officials appointed by the New York State Athletic Commission for the show are Bill Singer, referee; John Finnerty and Joe Kelly, judges; Morton Finch, timekeeper. Sam Riber will announce.

Reserved seats have been selling rapidly and talk among sports fans presages a big demand for bleacher seats when the doors swing open at 7:30 for the show which is to get started promptly at 8:15.

Underneath the City Hall Dome

Police Department Is Adopted By Some One's Strong Alibi Dog—This Dog Likes a Uniform—No Dependence Observed in The Marriage Must Have.

The members of the police department have been adopted by a very Alibi dog that wears a license tag dated 1931, and was issued in New York city. For several days now the Alibi dog has been making police headquarters his headquarters and the only time he leaves is to follow one of the officers out on his beat.

But once since he adopted the police force has his affection strayed and that was the morning he started to follow one of the paid firemen home. This was due to the fact that the dog was misled by the uniform of the fireman which is of blue also. It was not long after, however, when the canine was back at the city hall.

The cops have named the dog "Sarge" and he knows his name. If anyone wears a cop's uniform he is a friend of the dog, but otherwise the dog, although friendly enough, has no use for any other mortal.

Whether it is due to the SRA or the work of young Mr. Caple the fact remains that there is no depression in the marriage mart in Kingston and the city clerk is issuing more marriage licenses this year than ever before. In September 25 were issued and in October there were 29. This month is also expected to prove a record one.

Federal and State Laws

When federal and state laws cover the same subject, the federal law is supreme, and so state can enforce a law contrary to federal statute. The powers of a state are those not expressly reserved for the federal government.

Central Heating Old Idea

Central heating is no modern invention. Archaeologists excavating the Roman-Gaulish ruins of an important city near Chichester-Macon, dating back 19 centuries, uncovered an entire villa fully equipped with a central heating system. The heating was accomplished by warm air circulated through tubes.

An "American"

you'll be glad to meet!

FIRST, you're entitled to a bit of history. You'll want to know something about the American Oil Company itself.

In our old *territory people know the American Oil Company and its products. They're glad we're in business there. We want you to be glad we're in business here.

The American Oil Company has become a great American institution in the old *territory it serves.

Up to the time of our recent merger with Pan American, our operations extended in a big way through Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and North Carolina. You undoubtedly have friends in these states. Ask them about us.

To become the principal seller in many places—and in others, always among the first, the American Oil Company had to merit and hold the public's confidence. It has done so through products of unusual quality—real service—and sincere community interest.

The American Oil Company has always been a leader. It has originated and pioneered and developed. For example:

1. The American Oil Company—developed and marketed the first and original special motor fuel, AMOCO-GAS, which revolutionized both the gasoline and automobile industries, and made today's high compression motor possible.

2. It improved the quality of regular gasoline and was the first company to color regular gasoline to prevent substitution. Orange AMERICAN GAS is the original orange-colored regular gasoline.

3. It introduced the first visible gasoline pump—the forerunner of the present meter pump—so motorists could see they were getting the quantity of gasoline for which they were paying.

4. It has many records to its credit, such as:
The first non-stop passenger airplane flight across the Atlantic (Chamberlin)

The famous series of women's altitude and transcontinental airplane records (Ruth Nichols)

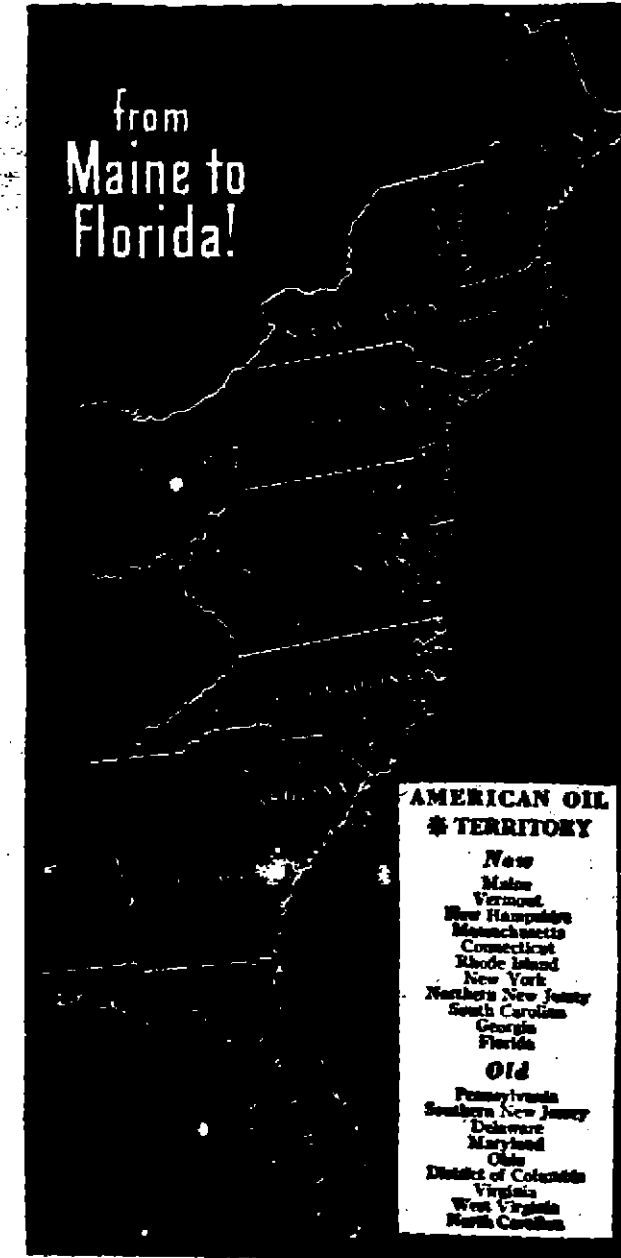

The great U. S. Army Pan American Flight—20,000 miles—through Central America, down the West Coast to Chile, across the Andes and up the East Coast of South America to Washington, D. C.

A host of automobile records by Pierce Arrow, Studebaker, Auburn, Ford, and others too numerous to mention here.

The American Oil Company's products are famous for their high quality. They are also distinctive, and represent the best "buys" in their respective price classes. You'll like these products.

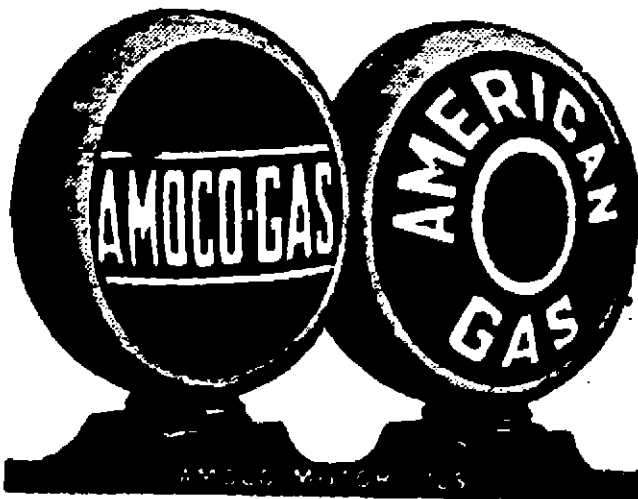

You'll be glad to meet "American" and be glad "American" is here.

The next message in this series will tell about: THE "AMERICAN" PLAN. Watch for it!
